

After owning and enjoying our summer home for roughly twenty years, we decided it was time to complete some long outstanding projects and make the home more comfortable for a permanent residence as we approach retirement years. This included adding two rooms and a deck with views of the lake, upgrading the siding, and adding a concrete driveway. Robinson Construction provided this and much more. Michael Robinson and his construction team applied the expert skills of all trades to make the vision we had come true. The only regret we have is not having done it years sooner. The care and skill that went into the undertaking is evident in the results and the home's appearance has taken a quantum leap. Some of the extras that were suggested and added as the project progressed include a dynamite patio under the deck that we have turned into a beer garden, a new no maintenance railing and post on the entrance porch, stone on the chimney chase, a gas log for the fireplace, and outside gas hookups for a grill and patio heater. Indeed, our vision of a retirement home with a fabulous view of the lake has come true.

Having gone through construction and building of the original home, we were keenly aware of the pains it takes to stay on top of contractors and subcontractors to avoid mistakes and unwanted results. Robinson Construction made sure we were aware of any and all decisions that might deviate from what we originally expected. The outcome of all changes were always for the better and often more economical. It wasn't long into the project before we had complete confidence in Robinson Construction. We knew things were in good hands and need not be concerned with frequent visits to check on progress. We can't say enough about the quality of the work and joy it was to work with Michael Robinson and his construction team. We are now enjoying the fruits of the project and waiting for our retirement years to make it permanent.

Thanks,
